

COMMANDER'S SAFETY POLICY STATEMENT

Mission accomplishment is the primary goal of our daily work within Intelligence Support Battalion. Attaining this goal without compromising the health and well-being of Marines and Sailors represents the fundamental basis of our safety program.

Accident prevention is essential and paramount to preserving the operational readiness and effectiveness of this command. Professionalism and standardization are the bedrock of safe and effective warfighting organizations. All Marines of this command share the responsibility to follow all directives in the performance of their duties. All Marines also have the duty to bring attention to unsafe conditions or procedures. Intelligence Support Battalion will execute “by the book” – always.

Our obligation to safety does not end when we are off duty. Safety lapses can occur if we become complacent to risks in our personal lives. High risk activities, water sports, motorcycle riding, and even everyday driving always require vigilance. Each of these can have tragic consequences if we fail to identify and address risks. Just like in the workplace, we must ensure we are equally accountable for safety in our personal lives.

At no time will any person in this Battalion be subject to coercion, discrimination, or reprisal for participating in the Marine Corps Safety Program. Individually and collectively, we have a responsibility to provide a safe and professional environment. Semper Fidelis!
